

A place to be understood.
Individualized by design.

Who we are

Winston Preparatory School is a leading school network for students with learning differences, including dyslexia, executive functioning difficulties (ADHD), and nonverbal learning disorders (NVLD). Our nationally recognized model serves students through grade 12, along with offering a multi-faceted gap year program for students who are not yet ready for college or the workplace. Our campuses are located in New York City, Long Island, NY, Connecticut, New Jersey, California, in addition to a fully online school, accessible anywhere in the United States.

What we do

Winston Prep's Continuous Feedback System (CFS) was designed to gain a deeper understanding of our students, facilitating independence through continual assessment, remediation, and analysis of a student's response to their individualized program. A key part of CFS is our teachers' focus on each student's ability to reflect, understand and internalize the skills practiced each day, leading to independence that results in outcomes such as 80% of our graduates going to college.

What makes us unique?

The Innovative Focus Program.

One to one. Every day.

Winston Prep's Focus program is as important as Math, History, Literature, or Writing. Every student spends 45 minutes one-on-one with their own Focus teacher each day. Focus teachers are in continual conversation with their student's other teachers and family.

Focus teachers are mentors, motivators, and specialists who are committed to finding each child's path to learning. They provide parents with a window to their child's school day and the Winston Prep community. Families can contact them directly to find out how their child is progressing academically and socially.
