

EDS IN SCHOOL PSYCHOLOGY

Drexel University's hybrid EdS in School Psychology is a pediatric-focused program that gives you the tools to make a real difference in the lives of children and young adults. The program utilizes a multicultural informed framework to teach you the roles and responsibilities of a school psychologist in a variety of community settings, including educational agencies, school districts, clinical and hospital settings, and behavioral health organizations, to ensure student success in and out of the classroom.

PROGRAM FEATURES:

- Flexible hybrid model offering on-campus and online courses
- Diverse coursework in early childhood development, applied behavioral analysis, legal and ethical policy and law, and teaching English language learners taught by experts in the field
- Includes practicum experiences, with the goal of getting you into community settings from the very beginning of your degree
- Opportunity to become dual certified in applied behavior analysis and school psychology
