Ways to fund your C-Pen Reader 2™

The C-Pen Reader 2™ could save districts and schools tens of thousands of dollars each year, but we understand the initial investment can be difficult.

There are many funding options available:

IDEA, Title I and III, American Rescue Plan funding, and many more. See a full list here:

> "We recently evaluated a student with a complex learning profile resulting in the student having difficulty processing symbols and phonetic codes at the rate necessary for fluent reading. The ReaderPen™ provided a means to access grade-level reading material which the student could comprehend but was previously unable to access. Additionally, the ReaderPen™ is small and does not draw adverse attention to it. Previous text-to-speech trials went unused as the student feared the social stigma. The student's family was worried about the transition from school to adulthood but now feel encouraged that their child will have a way to access material needed to pursue a chosen career." - California Department of Education - Diagnostic Center of Southern CA, SLP & Certified Brain Injury Specialist

> "When our student was helped with reading, he was ashamed that he couldn't read and everyone knew. Even though we thought he was getting the information from the aide, his embarrassment kept him from learning. The ReaderPen™ gave him independence and boosted his confidence. Now, he can do it himself and knows the answer." - Teacher
